LOMA has awarded more than 150,000 professional designations in 12 professional designation programs within the financial services industry, including more than 75,000 FLMI and almost 60,000 ACS designations. With award winning education programs, LOMA offers more opportunities than ever before for professional education and continued employee development.

Earning one or more of the LOMA designations gives you a broader view of the insurance industry. But with the business environment changing so rapidly, how can you be sure your knowledge of industry issues is current?

Being involved in a professional organization will help you stay abreast of issues that affect your industry and you. LOMA Societies, which are professional associations for those who have earned any of the LOMA designations, provide a forum for insurance professionals like you.

The LOMA Society of Greater Des Moines was founded in 1969 with the purpose of bringing together professionals and encouraging continuing education. The Society hosts meetings on a semi-annual basis with speakers presenting current issues about our industry.

In addition to our Spring and Fall meetings, the LOMA Society of Greater Des Moines also produces a quarterly newsletter and our Society members are active in community services, such as the Emergency Food Pantry.

What can LOMA Society membership do for you?

It can:

- § Give you valuable contacts with other insurance professionals.
- § Develop your leadership skills as a Society officer or committee member.
- § Keep you informed about industry issues with expert speakers, informative seminars, and other continuing education activities.

“Employees who have earned the Fellow, Life Management Institute (FLMI) designation are 39.2% more likely than those with no LOMA designations to receive an ‘above average’ rating during their performance evaluations. Also, employees having earned LOMA’s Associate designations are 32.9% more likely to be rated ‘above average’ than those with no LOMA designations*.”

“The mission of the LOMA Society of Greater Des Moines is to provide Society members, LOMA students, and other insurance professionals with opportunities for continuing education and professional growth and to increase the recognition of the LOMA designations.”
